

English as a second language for Pilots

The Cambridge Aero Club winter lectures and membership enrichment program feature a series of free lectures, specialist courses and round table studies – we are pleased to welcome you to drop-in English workshops with Club member: Steven Brereton.

Steven is a PPL holding pilot with Cambridge Aero Club. He is also a CELTA qualified English Language tutor.

Steven is seeking assistance from Aero Club members; pilots & student pilots alike whose second language is English, to help him understand any problems they face with language and communications. In return, he may be able to help them with any vocabulary, accent or other English language questions they may have.

His intention is to build a training program to encourage safety and to help improve the Language Proficiency Rating (LPR) of 'English as Second Language' (E2L) for the direct benefit of pilots.

Steven will be based at the Aero Club next week from 13:00 to 17:00 hrs on the 14th, 15th and 16th November, so please swing by to say hi!

Feel free to drop in for an informal chat or contact him directly if you have any specific questions or would like to request a time slot.
